Art Unit: 1771

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-11, 13-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Canadian Patent Application 2,047,010 to Burkhardt in view of JP 2000-212866 to Iwata et al, (partial translation attached). Burkhardt discloses a cleaning sheet comprising an absorbent nonwoven sheet which has a plurality of fibers or tips on one surface. The tips comprise thermoplastic polymer fibers such as polyester fibers having a preferred length of 8 mm and a fineness of 5-30 dtex. See page 3, paragraph 3. Burkhardt differs from the claimed invention because Burkhardt does not disclose that the substrate sheet comprises a mixture of cellulosic and thermoplastic fibers and because Burkhardt does not disclose the number of tips on the surface. With regard to the number of tips on the surface, it would have been obvious to have optimized the number of cleaning tips in the Burkhardt reference in order to arrive at a cleaning sheet having the optimum cleaning ability.

With regard to the limitation that the nonwoven fabric has a "number of tips of said thermoplastic fibers forming the nonwoven fabric exposed on the surface", since Burkhardt teaches that the nonwoven sheet may comprise all plastic fibers, the fibers making up the tips would be the fibers that make up the nonwoven fabric.

With regard to the substrate sheet itself, Burkhardt teaches that a nonwoven sheet may be used, but is silent as to the particulars of the sheet. JP 20000212866 to Iwata et al discloses a strong, bulky nonwoven fabric have excellent absorbency and wiping ability comprising a thermoplastic fiber having a length of 3-25 mm and a denier of 0.5 –50 denier which encompasses the claimed range and a cellulosic fibers. The fibers are bonded at intersections by heating. The cellulosic and thermoplastic fibers are present in the claimed proportions. See paragraphs 9-16 of the partial translation and the abstract. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have employed the wiping fabric of Iwata et al as the substrate in Burkhardt. One of ordinary skill in the art would have been motivated to employ the Iwata fabric as the substrate in Burkhardt because Iwata et al teaches that the nonwoven is particularly suitable for use a wiper and has good strength, bulk and absorbency.

Response to Amendment

3. It is noted that the status identifier of claim 12 should be "withdrawn" rather than "original".

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments filed 10/7/03 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant argues that the fibers of Burkhardt are applied to the substrate. However, as set forth above, the fibers of both the nonwoven and the tips may be the same plastic fibers. Therefore, the tips would be the same fibers as those making up the nonwoven. With regard to the argument that Burkhardt does not teach the number of tips to be a result effective variable, since Burkhardt teaches employing the tips as wipers, one of ordinary skill in the art would recognize that the number of tips would be related to the efficiency of cleaning in that one tip would be less effective than many tips, but that too many tips would have a deleterious effect on the flexibility of the fibers and the ability of the fibers to hold dirt. Therefore, through the process of routine experimentation, the optimal number of fibers would be selected.

5. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
